

Senior Care Network Assisted Living Waiver Program

This program is for older adults and adults with disabilities who want to live in an assisted living facility. Assisted living is home-like and offers meals, help with personal care, and activities. The Assisted Living Waiver program (ALW) helps pay for these services and provides ongoing support from Senior Care Network's (SCN) team of nurses and social workers. We work with several assisted living facilities who accept the waiver.

Do I qualify for ALW?

Consider applying if you meet all:

- 21 or older
- On Medi-Cal with zero Share of Cost (SOC)
- Have medical conditions that could need nursing care
- Want to live in an assisted living facility where ALW is provided

What are the benefits of ALW?

- Living in a home-like setting rather than a skilled nursing facility
- In-person visits from a social worker every month and assessment by a registered nurse two times per year
- Help with insurance coverage and community resources
- Having someone to talk to and advocate for your needs

Who pays for ALW?

Medi-Cal pays for services at the assisted living facility. However, the resident must pay for their own room and board. Most residents use their income, such as Social Security or SSI, to pay.
